Heavy Attack R.A.F. Pounds Tormentor With Block-Busters

By JOHN A. PARRIS
Parriss to the Edmonton Bulletin
LONDON, Feb. 17.—(CP)—British and Canadian four-engine bombers pounded Tormentor, Germany's biggest U-boat base on the French Atlantic coast, with a series of heavy bombs last night for the third time in four nights.

The communiqué said the bombers were lost despite the magnitude of the raid and the fact that the German defenses were alerted.

One enemy fighter was shot down.

Lorient raid followed by a few hours an American Flying Fortress and Liberator bombing attack on St. Nazaire, which has a base 60 miles further down the French Atlantic coast.

STARK BIG FIRES
The communiqué said that the American kindled big fires at St. Nazaire, then fought a furious battle over the channel with German Focke-Wulf 109 fighters. Six enemy bombers were shot down.

British fighters simultaneously attacked German communications and transport at many points in northwest Germany and occupied Belgium.

Occupied France also was attacked by fighters and fighters followed two raids on German locomotives were machine-gunned by three Canadian fighters. Road lines, bridges and barges were bombed. The fighters also shot down an enemy plane.

German planes were active during the night, carrying out their usual pattern of attacks in recent weeks. A communiqué said a number of points in southern England and South Wales were bombed.

Caucus Hints: Western Provinces May Seek Action by People On Farm Debt Question

Members of the Social Credit Party, meeting in caucus Tuesday afternoon in the legislative buildings, are expected to discuss Ottawa matters quickly on the question of farm debts, or the three prairie governments will take the matter to a higher authority—the people of Canada.

This was the consensus of members' statements at the meeting, which was devoted solely to the question of farm debts.

Hon. Lucien Maynard, K.C., minister of municipal affairs, detailed to the caucus steps taken by the government since the Saskatchewan conference.

This conference was attended by representatives from the governments of Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba, as well as from farm organizations in those provinces. Steps were taken at the conference, Mr. Maynard said, to obtain a view of the situation as to the farm debt problem, but with no results.

Mr. Maynard pointed out that on three separate occasions, the Dominion government had been approached on the debt question, and that each time a different excuse had been given for continued inaction.

Members of the caucus stated much pressure had been brought to bear upon themselves by farmers and farm organizations, for help in the growing crisis, and felt it Ottawa could afford no refusal, the question should be decided by the Canadian people.

Possible solutions to the problem were given by Mr. Maynard at the caucus, and will be discussed at length by the Social Credit members at further meetings.

However, one of these will be made public until after a coming conference, again at Saskatoon, to be attended by the same bodies as in the previous year.

Wood Indicates May Postpone Beveridge Plan Until After War

By C. T. HALLINAN
HALLINAN to the Edmonton Bulletin
LONDON, Feb. 17.—(CP)—Sir Kingsley Wood, Chancellor of the Exchequer, indicated today that the Beveridge plan might have to wait until after the war to act on the Beveridge social security plan.

He was answering growing Labor Party demands for immediate legislation embodying its recommendations.

"The cost of putting into effect the proposal for providing a higher standard of living for all subjects must be considered in the light of the uncertain length of the war, Wood said.

He hinted that even after the war would result from passage of security legislation at this time, and that the government would have to face the "middle class" and additional burden.

"Some of the hardest, severest and cruelest cases I have heard have come from that section of the community," Wood asserted.

Several members urged prompt government action on the legislation. One asserted that many were convinced that the Beveridge plan was a good one.

"Be as brave as you are asking the soldiers to be in battle," Labor Party George Buchanan said. "If you are not, you will not be a good citizen."

He said that the Beveridge plan, "should be our master rather than our servant," but added that it was a good plan.

Will Be Stamped Registration Cards Needed To Buy Liquor

OTTAWA, Feb. 17.—(CP)—The Dominion government has given permission to the Alberta liquor control board to stamp national registration cards of persons holding or buying a liquor permit in the province.

The stamping of registration cards, officials believe, will go a long way toward solving the problem of liquor permits.

It is in addition to the official card which is being issued to liquor vendors.

Until today, only a person's name stood behind himself and his name on the card. If it is not stamped, the card is not valid.

It is a case in which one man held nine at one time. More than one permit allowed a thirty percent increase in the 40-ounce ration per person.

Must show card

Under these new regulations, a person must show his registration card if it is not stamped, and initialled, that a permit has been issued to the holder on the card. This note more than one permit will be issued to one person.

To take care of those who already held a permit, the liquor board may require all persons holding liquor to produce their registration card if it is not stamped, the vendor will mark it, and the registration card will be a permit.

This action would automatically eliminate the owner of more than one permit, who has used a false name on an application for a permit. The name on the permit is the same as the name on the registration card, and the application could be charged with an infringement of the liquor act.

CHECK OFFENDERS
Those who have more than one permit issued to their own name will be checked eventually through the office of the control board, where all applications are received. Coincidental names will receive a check, and the officials are sure.

The victory handed the Canucks their first win in the league since the first season, four minutes of the first period. Christiansen tied the score on a pass from Green.

The score remained deadlocked at 1-1 until 12 minutes of play had passed in the third round when Stollery put South Side ahead on a relay from Christiansen.

Just Steeplechasing Banned

Sports Curtailed But Still Continue in Wartime Britain

LONDON, Feb. 17.—(AP)—It often has been said that Britain's two prime public recreations are beer and sports, and the government has tacitly reaffirmed this maxim so far during the war.

Beer is doing as well as usual. Sports have undergone drastic retrenchments, but are continuing in nearly unabated variety and popularity, although the time given to them has been cut down.

Canadian and American soldiers have introduced golf and basketball to enthusiastic popularity among fans. A total of $125,000,000 was bet on dog races alone during 1942. The regular Oxford-Cambridge boat race has just been held.

As a matter of fact, the only sport officially banned is winter steeplechasing, because of the problems of transportation and feeding. On the other hand, sports have managed to surmount most obstacles.

Attendance has been as high as 15,000 for Sunday football doubleheaders between Canadian and Americans. On the other hand, racing crowds have dwindled by 50 per cent or more, mainly due to transportation.

At the start of the war, it was feared England's leading game, professional football might have to suspend, but it has had a strong revival. The traditional Saturday contests continue. Players, who used to get $20 to $25 weekly, now perform when and where they can get leave for a flat fee of $5 per game.

Some cricket, notably that played in country leagues, has been stringently curtailed, but at Lords, two matches weekly are still permitted.

Within the past 10 years India has added 50,000,000 to her population, which now stands at 300,000,000 it was stated in London.

NEW YORK, Feb. 17.—If service rulings force the abandonment or drastic curtailment of college football this autumn, high school grid teams may be moved up to the "big time" to provide the public with entertainment on Saturday afternoons.

This possibility was admitted today by Dr. A. K. Aldinger, secretary of the Greater New York Athletic League of Greater New York—an organization that includes at boy's high schools.

Dr. Aldinger said: "It still is uncertain whether the future of college football for the duration, but I am sure we will see what it is all about for the college game. I mean the month of May because that is when the P.S.A.L. games committee completes its schedule of contests for the fall."

'I Am a Murderer'

By MORRIS MARKEY

SEARCH REWARDED

DURING these years I lived in Cleveland, O. The nature of my business affairs had taken me there, and I had settled into a small, obscure apartment. I lived in the utmost simplicity, and avoided friends. From time to time I would change to another apartment, equally obscure—and at the same time I would change my name to a new one.

For, from the very outset, I knew that the clean execution of my aims must leave my own history my own trail through life, a history and confused one. The boy named Richard Frye was slowly edged from existence upon the earth. And in his place there emerged not a single, new individual, but a dozen wholly inconspicuous individuals.

It was this basic necessity, indeed, which laid the solid ground work for the method which I was to employ in the final act, although I did not realize it at the beginning.

I fell into the habit of playing roles at first, from the simple need to allow John Hunter of No. 12 Cherry avenue to fade out of life in behalf of Charles McGraw of No. 67 Alameda street.

But every mortal soul, no matter what the steadiness and singularity of his purpose upon the earth, must needs find some amusement. And so I took to the amusement of creating fictitious characters when the mood came upon me.

One evening, I would be a de-bonair lady in a Chicago cabaret—An immediately turned out fellow of the world, eager to meet at the bar, a ready spender of money, requesting particular numbers from the orchestra and rewarding the players lavishly for playing them.

Again, I was a snarling dog-walker, or a cold and silent and dangerous figure in some lake-front dive. Once I spent two days as a make-believe policeman—actually giving summaries to several unhappy violators of the parking and speeding regulations—without being questioned or suspected.

This succession of pretenses which were, I think, quite harmless in their effect upon other people, became in short my hobby. At last, I dawned upon me that it was something more than a hobby—that it would perhaps play a critical part in my plan.

Of course, I had no real conception as to the manner in which the ultimate scene would be played out. I had but enough to realize that the stage-management of that scene—in which my own complete safety would be of major importance—must depend exactly upon the setting and the circumstances in which I would at last find him.

I knew, with a complete certainty, that I would find him. It never occurred to me for a single instant that my search would fail, or that my higher justice would take its retribution before I could take mine for you and me. I had my own religion—and I had faith in it.

Which is not to say that I saw him, nor recognized at the moment that my quest was at an end. I had brought along with me a small accumulation of my trade journal articles, and in the morning when the wind from the lake fluttered the curtains even in my hotel room, I came upon an item.

Col. Wesley Hope Merriweather, has announced his retirement from all active interest in his gold and silver enterprises, and his resignation from the boards of Twin Valley Smelting Company, Spillway Development Corporation, and other companies with which he has been associated. He will retire to an estate which he has recently acquired at Gull Point, Long Island.

I telephoned to the editor of the journal.

"This is the Chicago Morning," I said. "I noticed your item on Merriweather in the current issue, and we haven't got anything on him in the file. Can you tell us a little about him? Is he a Chicago man?"

There was a wait.

"Hello. We haven't got much on him either. One of our boys picked up that bit of news, and we ran it. That's about all I know. He hasn't been in the news, I guess. Maybe just some figured."

"Thank you," I said. "Telephone calls to the corporations listed produced a fact: All of them were singularly aware of him in the file. Can you tell us a little about him? Is he a Chicago man?"

"I can't keep track of the boys you boys to different cells—you'll have to get a new hobby!"

centrally public."

It was simply a matter of routine to complete my business affairs and take the train to New York.

Gull Point was less than an hour from the city and on my second day there I saw Col. Wesley Hope Merriweather, looking into his face as he was pointed out to me, passing in the street—and knowing that I looked into the face of Norman Tinker.

I felt no surge of elation. Such a moment had been ordained from the start of time. I spent four days at Gull Point—as a salesman of drug sundries, this time, and living in a cheap room—meeting the small business people, and listening, and discovering the nature of this community. I learned that Colonel Merriweather had a daughter in his household, and I saw that daughter.

I saw also my mother in her hair and in the proud fine lift of her face. But, again, it must be confessed that my emotions were not profoundly stirred. Those emotions had been burned brittle a day before in the far distant forest.

During the four days, I learned enough to enable me to go to the life of Paul Gray, in Cleveland, and to all down and think of that thinking the better part of three weeks. From it there emerged the basic pattern of the plan. Not the details, of course. Those must wait upon even upon the impossibilities of chance and of human caprice. But, in all of its essentials, the plan was formed.

It was a long-term plan, indeed, upon the successful execution of which I had diverted my attention.

It required the creation of two characters, not one. For the preparation of them at least of the most important of them—I decided to go to the neighborhood where was obvious. Nobody knew me there, nowadays. And California, particularly the neighborhood of the moving picture studios, was where a stranger might appear out of nowhere and escape even the most casual interest in his past.

I spent a year in the Hollywood country before I returned at last to Gull Point; returned now as a gay and carefree fellow, friend to all the world. And on the day that I took the leave upon a small, carefully chosen cottage, I signed that leave with the name of my self—Henry Prentiss.

Every Man Aboard Has His Part to Play

Plenty of Action When Battlewagons of Sea Open Up

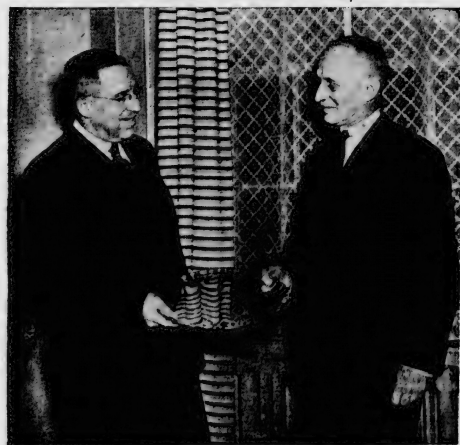

Dramatic in its lack of heroic "action" is the photo above—which actually shows a close-up of real fighting during the final assault on Buna, New Guinea. The soldiers are Australians—blasting at 25 Japs fleeing from a wrecked pillbox only 150 yards away. Soldier in foreground rests his machine gun on a palm tree stump to steady his aim. Other men in background fire their rifles as they walk forward. One man crouches beside the advancing tank.

That's War For You

Presented With Silver Tray

At a complimentary dinner in Saint John, N.B., Lt.-Col. Walter A. Harrison, of Rethesay, N.B., and Ottawa, was presented with a silver tray by a group of New Brunswick wartime manufacturers. Col. Harrison is seen at right above receiving the tray from L. W. Simms, Saint John brush manufacturer, who presented it on behalf of those present at the function. The tray bears the following inscription: "Presented to Lt.-Col. Walter A. Harrison, M.C., V.D., member of the War Supply Board, executive assistant to the Minister of Munitions and Supply, by manufacturers of the Province of New Brunswick, in appreciation of services rendered in the war effort—1940, Ottawa, 1943." The dinner was held on the third anniversary of Col. Harrison's appointment to Ottawa, and at it he announced on behalf of Hon. C. D. Howe that $2,000,000 in new contracts for wooden shipbuilding had just been let in New Brunswick, thus reviving an industry which made this seaside province a hive of activity in earlier years in the building and launching of ships.

Hollywood—It's really back to horse and buggy days for Joan Fontaine and Brian Aherne when they week-end on their 160-acre vegetable farm near Indio, California. When they purchased the farm, the stars used to fly their own plane to it for the week-end holiday. The plane, of course, has been grounded by government regulations forbidding private flying in this area. Then come tire rationing, and that meant the end of the long automobile treks to the farm. To fellow members of "The Constant Nymph" cast at Warner Bros., Miss Fontaine confided that she and Aherne have purchased a buggy and a set of driving harness. They already had horses on the farm. From now on they'll take the train or bus to Indio and be driven to their property by horse and buggy.

Air Marshal Pays Tribute to Girls in R.C.A.F.

"Me and my gals," smilingly observed Air Marshal L. S. Broadner, C.B., D.S.C., Chief of the Air Staff, when he was photographed with these members of the Royal Canadian Air Force Women's Division after an inspection of their ranks. The Chief of the Air Staff seized the opportunity of paying warm tribute to the work of the Women's Division. "Let there be no misunderstanding about what the senior officers of the R.C.A.F. think," he said. "Members of the Women's Division are doing an essential job and they are doing it well. I have heard nothing but praise from the Commanding Officer of my station to which the Women's Division has been posted, and without exception they have said, 'Send us more.'" With the C.A.S. here are AW2 Hughian McNeil, Toronto (left), and Flight Sgt. Beatrice Lawrence of Kamloops, B.C.
